Easy Pace Travel to Europe

Linda Coneybeare
Travel Plus

Machenzie and I here at Travelplus always seem to be working a season ahead, or a year ahead in some instances. We are busy booking the wonderful river cruises of Europe and South East Asia, as well as Alaska for summer 2016 and they do need to be booked many months in advance

We are also starting to book winter destinations as the early booking promotions with Transat Holidays and Nolitours are offer great savings for bookings made before Sept. 30 for travel winter 2016.

Europe is a popular destination year round and there are many ways to get around: a la carte with airfare and a rail pass is one way. However, escorted tours such as those offered by Insight Vacations and Trafalgar Tours allow you an easy, stress free way to experience the wonders of Europe.

One concern is "is the pace too busy?" Are we having to pack and unpack every night?" The answer is no, not unless you want to. There are the typical coach tours offering a quick overview of 10 countries in two weeks, and they are great for those who want to experience a little bit of every country in a limited time. However, if you want to slow the pace down, and perhaps just experience one or two areas of one country there are "easy pace" tours available.

Insight Vacations offers as an example :Easy Pace France, 11 days offering three nights in Paris, three nights Nimes and three nights Monte Carlo, a relaxing itinerary that allows you to experience three regions of France with minimum packing and unpacking. The areas of Nimes and Monte Carlo are where my daughter and I spent a delightful week earlier this spring and loved it!

Trafalgar Tours offers similar easy paced tours some in Italy another country on my top five list

One tour is called Rome and Tuscan Highlights one night in Rome then a short transfer up to the beautiful Tuscan town of Montecatini where you stay for six nights. From this beautiful spa resort town you are offered day trips to the nearly towns of Siena, Florence, and the medieval village of San Gimignano. This quaint village is known as the "Medieval Manhatten" as it is famed for its ring of towers that can be seen several kilometres away. For you movie fans out there like me – do you remember a movie called Tea with Mussolini staring Cher and Maggie Smith filmed in San Gimignano. I love that movie!

An area of Italy that I have not visited (yet) is the Lake District of Lake Garda, Lake Maggiore and Lake Como. Trafalgar's "Best of the Italian Lakes" offer two nights in Lake Maggiore then five nights in Lake Garda

Full day excursions are offered to many of the beautiful towns nearby, including Verona (movie note: Letters to Juliet filmed here), Modena and Bergona, located near the foothills of the Alps.

Italy is renowned for its great food and wine and as a stand alone food group in my opinion: gelato. I try to remember the great meals I have experienced (schnitzel with Camembert and pear at the Rhubarb in Carnarvon is one of my most memorable meals recently).

In Italy I remember lots of amazing food: prosciutto with melon, lobster ravioli, pizza marguerite and of course gelato. Lemon meringue gelato in Nettuno, cappuccino gelato in Florence, raspberry gelato in Assisi. Another city in Italy; another Gelato!

Yes, there are monuments, cathedrals, fountains (it's true I keep a postcard of the Trevi Fountain in Rome on the wall beside my office desk) but one of the most memorable experiences of travelling to Europe is the food!

So ask me about a city of Europe and I will tell you all about the beautiful buildings and the art and history but chances are I will tell you about a memorable meal!

Enjoy our glorious summer! Machenzie and I look forward to telling you in another column about our favourite places to travel; it's a big world out there!

New Horizons at the Haliburton Highlands Museum

Do you have traditional skills you'd like to share? Do you quilt, spin, knit, bake or perhaps do woodworking? Are there traditional skills you'd like to learn? Perhaps canning, gardening, sewing or old-fashioned games? When the first settlers came to the Haliburton area in the 19th century, a great deal of knowledge would have been passed from person to person and generation to generation informally – especially when school was out! We're hoping to tap into this aspect of Haliburton's past through a grant we've received from the New Horizons for Seniors program. Visitors to the museum often tell us that there are skills they regret not picking up from family members when they were younger and we know that seniors in our community have a vast array of skills and knowledge to share. Through this program in partnership with the Dysart et al. Recreation Program, we hope to close the generation gap and preserve skills that might otherwise be lost, as well as getting people more active throughout our community. But we need your help!

We're seeking seniors who are willing to volunteer some time and their skills to teach children, youth and young adults. The focus will be on hands-on fun and learning together. You can volunteer as little or as much of your time as you like. The Museum will provide the materials required by the volunteers, and there will be no charge for the children to participate.

Come to the Haliburton Highlands Museum (66 Museum Road) on Sunday, August 2nd between 11am and 3pm for our Haliburton Settler-bration to learn more about the program. Bring along a picnic lunch and join us for traditional games, demonstrations and treats! Try out a few new skills and even enjoy a tour of the Haliburton Sculpture Forest! If you have any questions about the event or you would like to get involved with our New Horizons for Seniors project, please contact Kate Butler at the Museum at 705-457-2760, or e-mail info@haliburtonhighlandsmuseum.com.

Boat Safety Is Sober Work

July 19 to 25 marks Drowning Prevention Week in Canada and when it comes to water safety among adult males in Ontario we're in deep trouble.

According to data from the Drowning Prevention Research Centre water related fatalities in Ontario are highest for men ages 15 to 24 and those over the age of 55. Of all the drownings that took place 28 per cent were related to power boating, fishing from a boat and canoeing.

St. John Ambulance would like to remind Ontarians heading out on the water this weekend to prepare for safety.

Watch the weather. Check the weather ahead of your outing to make sure there is no risk of high winds or lightning.

Put a Personal Floatation Device PFD on every person. The number one factor among these drownings was the victim was not wearing a PFD at the time. It isn't enough to have a PFD on your vessel or only on young/weak swimmers everyone on the water should be wearing a PFD at all times. If you are boating at night make sure to opt for a high visibility PFD and wear a whistle. The whistle will make you easier to locate in the dark water.

Stay Sober. It is not only illegal to operate a boat while impaired it is incredibly dangerous. The effects of alcohol are compounded when you are in a boat. The motion of the water impacts balance while the sun's reflection can disrupt your vision. Stay well hydrated and stay sober.

Keep a warm blanket/towel handy. It is important to remember that our lakes remain cold well into the summer months and falling from a boat can result in immersion hypothermia. A person loses body heat 25 to 30 times faster in water than in air of the same temperature. If someone falls from your boat have him assume the HELP (Heat Escape Lessening Position) by hugging his knees to his chest until he can be pulled from the water. When safe on land or back in the boat do not have him remove his clothes, wrap him in a blanket/towel to help keep his body heat in.

Learn to swim. Even if the only reason you take to the water is to fish knowing how to swim is important. Swimming lessons will help you build confidence and strength to save yourself should you fall in the water. It's also excellent exercise.

Pair up or share your plan. A day on the water is always more fun with friends. Make sure you keep track of how many people are with you and where they are at any given time. If you're heading out by yourself for a swim or on the boat let someone nearby know where you will be and when you plan on returning. Make sure to call them if you update your plan or are running late.

Learn first aid and CPR. Despite all of your precautions sometimes bad things just happen. Be prepared by learning first aid and CPR.

Greg Cholkan

The Law Talkin' Guy

On Wednesday, July 29, Barriston LLP welcomes you to their office at 195 Highland St. in Haliburton for an opportunity to talk to a lawyer – free of charge – about your wills and estate planning needs. Whether you're retired or a newlywed with a young family, drop by and meet us. We'll be happy to answer any questions you may have.

You can start with the basic ones: Do I really need a will? How much will it cost? What is an estate trustee and what does an estate trustee do? What is a power of attorney for personal care? What is a power of attorney for property? What is a trust? What happens if I die without a will? What are estate administration taxes, how much are they, and should I avoid them at all cost?

And then there are some other concerns. For example, when it comes to family law: I am worried that my child may get divorced one day. Can I prevent the spouse or ex-spouse from taking my child's share of the estate? I have children under the age of 18. Can I appoint a guardian for my children in my will? For how long is the appointment effective?

There are some common financial and real estate issues too. I've loaned money to one of my three children. How do I make sure that my estate is divided equally amongst my children? My children are approaching their early 20s and I don't want them to inherit a large sum of money and spend it all right away. How can I prevent this? I have a family cottage. How can I make sure that my children and their respective families continue the use and enjoyment of the property?

Once every so often, people also have special requests. For example: I have a dog and a cat that I love dearly. Can I leave these pets with a specific person? How can I help ensure that the pets are properly taken care of? I have a website or blog. What will happen to it after I die? Can I authorize someone to keep publishing posts? The number of issues truly is endless.

There will be 14 half hour appointment slots available, beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 4 p.m. – first come, first served. To make an appointment, please email: gcholkan@barristonlaw.com or call 705-789-4493 and ask for Greg.

The best (gluten-free) black bean brownies

Alanna Jean
Natural Living

Do you have a sweet-tooth? Do you love chocolate? Instead of grabbing something from the convenient store or bakery, try making my brownies for a healthy, chocolaty treat!

- 1.5 cups of black beans (soaked, and cooked)
- 1/3 cup of maple syrup
- 1/2 cup of (gluten-free) oats
- 1 tablespoon of Chia Seeds
- 1 organic egg
- 1 tablespoon of leftover brewed coffee
- 2 teaspoons of vanilla extract
- 2 tablespoons of raw cacao powder
- 1/3 cup of coconut oil
- 1/2 cup of chocolate chips

Wait a second… black beans in brownies? You must think I'm crazy! Believe me, you wont taste a hint of beans in these delicious treats.

Heat oven to 350F. Blend everything (except for the chocolate chips) in a food processor (I used my Vitamix) until really smooth and then stir in chocolate chips. Grease a brownie pan with coconut oil and spread in your mixture. Bake for 15 minutes, and then let cool for 15 minutes before slicing in (if you can make it that long)!

These brownies are packed full of fiber and protein, which are excellent tools for weight-loss and weight-management. They also contain tons of magnesium, which can aid in sleep, relaxation and muscle recovery. The coconut oil is a medium-chain-triglyceride, which means your body uses it for energy rather than storing it as fat. The Chia seeds are an excellent source of Omega 3, which helps your body fight inflammation. Overall, these brownies are pretty amazing - and they taste great too!

Women's role in history

Bessie's Books and Other Things

Bessie Sullivan
Library CEO

Until very recently history has almost exclusively been written by men. Often famous men are portrayed as having obtained greatness independent of any assistance. There seems to be a recent trend in fiction to tell the story from the perspective of the women in the lives of famous men.

For me, this trend started with Loving Frank by Nancy Horan. Published in 2007 it tells the story of Mamah Cheney who was the lover of Frank Lloyd Wright. An intellect in her own right she was a translator who spoke six languages. The book painfully reveals the kinds of choices some women made at the time to be able to carve out a life or career independent of being a wife and a mother.

Ernest Hemingway's first wife's name was Hadley Richardson and was eight years his senior. The book, The Paris Wife by Paula McLain tells the story of the tumultuous and passionate relationship that lasted six years and produced one child. McLain's story is said to be true to actual events and that notion is confirmed in Hemingway's memoir, A Moveable Feast, which takes place in Paris during his time with Hadley.

Nancy Horan followed up Loving Frank by publishing Under the Wide and Starry Sky in 2014. This book is the story of Fanny Osbourne the wife of Robert Louis Stevenson, like Hadley Richardson, Fanny was older than her husband. Stevenson was actually in fairly poor health throughout his lifetime and Fanny looked after him so he was able to write. He died in his 40s and what he did produce is very much because Fanny fed him, nursed him, and made sure he slept, as well as read and critiqued his work.

A Canadian writer Carol Bruneau wrote These Good Hands that was published this year. This book tells the story of Camille Claudel who was a pupil and then mistress of the sculptor Auguste Rodin. Set in 1943, Claudel has been in a mental institution in France for 30 years and has grown old. The story of her youth and immeasurable talent is told in alternating chapters between her recollections and the observations of a fictional nurse put in charge of her care. In the Rodin museum in Paris there is an iconic sculpture of the naked Claudel that exemplifies the profound effect she had on his art.

One other book that doesn't quite follow the theme but illustrates the history of a very interesting set of sisters was published late in 2014 called Vanessa and Her Sister by Priya Parmar. The book is about Vanessa and Virginia Stephens better known as Virginia Woolf the writer and Vanessa Bell the painter. The sisters were part of the "Bloomsbury Group," a group of creative people who met frequently and produced a variety of work.

Reading fiction like the titles discussed is my window to a history of women that I would not otherwise discover. These selections also remind me that rarely do we create something of importance in isolation.
